Happiness is ...

A man found a magic lantern and, for years, every time he rubbed it a "Genie" would appear to grant his wish. Because of his constant anxious worries, the man kept "Genie" busy. This went on for years – one wish after another until one day the "Genie" appeared and said; "I am sick and tired of your anxious worry and your constant wishing. I have decided to settle this arrangement we have, once and for all. I will grant your next three wishes and nothing more. After that you're on your own." The man made his first wish immediately. He asked that his wife would disappear so that he could marry another woman. His wish came true. But when friends and relatives discovered she was gone they began to recall all the wife's good qualities. This saddened the man and he realised he had been hasty. Where would he find a better woman than his wife? So, he asked "Genie" to bring her back and immediately his wish was granted. Now he had but one wish left. He fretted and agonised about that third wish. He was determined not to make another mistake, since he would be unable to correct it. He went everywhere for advice. Some people told him to wish for immortality. But if he got sick, he reasoned, what good would immortality be? "Maybe", he told himself, "I should wish for good health." But then he asked himself: "What good is health if I don't have much money? And what good is money if I have no friends?" Many years passed and still he worried. Finally, in desperation, he cried out: "Someone tell me what to ask for!" And he heard a gentle voice from within answer: "Ask to be content, no matter what you get." They say that happiness is not a destination, but rather a manner of travelling. Happiness is not an end in itself, but a by-product of working, playing, loving and living. We need to encourage one another.

In his youth Thomas Edison, the great inventor, struggled with serious learning disabilities. After only three months at school he returned home one day in tears because his teacher had called him stupid and put him at the back of the class. When Edison's mother learned what had happened she confronted the teacher. Then she took her son out of the school and taught him herself at home. There she nurtured his natural curiosity. Many years later Edison said of his mother: "Her encouragement helped me to believe in myself."

Encouragement of those around you not only brightens their future but brightens your own as well. None of us controls everything in life. But we can make choices about who we are and what we do.

Today choose to be the person God had in mind when He chose to create you.

Humour Corner

In A Hurry

A woman and her husband interrupted their vacation to go to the dentist.
"I want a tooth pulled, and I don't want Novacaine because I'm in a big hurry," the woman said.
"Just extract the tooth as quickly as possible, and we'll be on our way."
The dentist was quite impressed.
"You're certainly a courageous woman," he said.
"Which tooth is it?"
The woman turned to her husband and said,
"Show him your tooth, dear."

A day without laughter is a day wasted!
