Reflection

(When life's worries and anxieties weigh us down)

While waiting in the Post Office I met Timothy for the first time. He was almost my height but twice as wide with short grey hair and the loveliest faded blue eyes with laughter crinkles in the corners. I guess he is in his late forties.

I asked his name but he didn't reply. He just looked into my eyes, smiled, and then wrapped me in a great bear hug.

Timothy has Down's Syndrome and is full of love. You can't be angry or sad in his presence ... what a gift to the world!

*This is so beautiful.
Mentally disabled people are angels sent by God to show us "normal" people how to be simple, loving and trusting.*

*Too bad that they are scorned and avoided.
Those who do, do not know what they are missing.*
